

TICKET STAYS IN THE FIELD

Scotfield Will Head the National Republican Ticket—Campaign To Continue.

FIGHT IS TO THE BITTER END NOW

No Let-Up in the Following of the Doctrines Laid Down at the Opera House Convention Held Last May.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13.—The die is cast. The last word has been said and the National Republican ticket headed by Edward Scotfield will appear on the official ballot election day as opposing nominees of the democrats, social democrats, prohibitionists and Governor La Follette. There is no drawback now. There is no chance for a compromise. From now on the force is alluded as distinctly as though the National Republicans were the only republicans in the state and the La Follette followers a fusion democratic and populist gathering. The only great trouble in the situation is that Scotfield will not get the full National Republican vote. By that I mean that his total will not represent the full vote on election day. Many will vote for Peck and these will not be counted in the National Republican columns. However, the total will be large enough to frighten the governor and show the country at large that the fight in Wisconsin has not been all talk.

No Let-Up
There is to be no let-up in activity. M. G. Jeffris and Senator Quarles are to continue their speaking throughout the state, but Senator Spooner will not speak further. He will offer his services to the national republican committee and will speak in cities outside the limits of the state. The session yesterday was a heated one. There were those who believed that the best interests of the national ticket could only be secured by withdrawing the ticket headed by Scotfield from the field. Of these Senator Spooner and Chas. Pfister were the leaders. Then there was an element which pointed out the fact that if the ticket was withdrawn, they had assurances from all parts of the state to back it up. Startling would be the Roosevelt electors and would vote for Parker and Davis. This would be a serious blow. They also argued that the organization to fight the governor was now properly organized; that to stop now meant the death of the fight and urged it be kept up.

Vote Was Unanimous
From one o'clock until six the question was argued pro and con. Long Jones of Waukesha and Senator Cash Rogers of Milwaukee were the exponents of continuing the fight. When the final vote came it was unanimous in favor of continuing the fight. There is to be no retrograde movement. The National Republicans are in the field. They are in the front of the fighting line against the governor. Senator Quarles will continue his speeches. M. G. Jeffris will continue his addresses. They will be reinforced by numerous others. The Pfister Hotel looked like a republican convention hall. Republicans from all parts of the state were there. It was an old-time gathering. Men who fought shoulder to shoulder with Sawyer, Fairchild, Rusk, Keyes, Upham and others had assembled to see the settlement of their fate decided. Inside the committee room there was a grim determined lot of men. They believed their fight just and as a just fight thought they should continue until the end came.

Critique President
There was some line of criticism of the president and the arbitrary methods used in recognizing the governor's state central committee. Senator Spooner was the president's pleader. What he said will be long remembered. Perhaps if any man has just cause for being aggrieved at the action of Cortelyou it is the senator and the able manner in which he espoused the cause of the much abused chairman of the national committee should alleviate the feeling that was exhibited by many of those present. It is safe to say that Senator Spooner through his able management of the defense of the actions called all thoughts of disapproval and the committee adjourned feeling that the action of the national committee had perhaps been the wisest thing under the circumstances. The determination to fight, however, was not weakened and out of the meeting of yesterday a great campaign will develop, a campaign whose effects will be felt upon national politics. It was not a gathering of enthusiastic young men but an assemblage of thoughtful politicians and they have lost none of the cunning that has led the republican party to victory in times past.

WILL BE READY TO GREET GOVERNOR, IF HE COMES

"If Gov. La Follette comes into Rock county on his proposed raid and works against Senator Whitehead and our republican nominees for the assembly we will give him one of the warmest times he ever had in all his campaigning."

This was the statement of County Chairman Thomas S. Nolan this morning. It has been formally announced by the La Follette leaders of the county that both La Follette and Cooper would speak here within the next ten days. Cooper to make one speech and La Follette twelve. The La Follette leaders have made arrangements for automobiles and teams to drive the governor to his various destinations and are hiring and paying for halls to exclude republican speakers.

"Starting Monday night, the La Follette speakers have abused Whitehead and the assembly nominees and urged voters to cut them from the ticket," said Mr. Nolan. "If the governor comes in and tries the same work, we will make it hot for him. I have engaged two automobiles to carry our speakers about. We will immediately precede the governor or follow him at each of his speeches. I have promises from Senator Quarles, M. G. Jeffris, Senator Whitehead and others to this effect.

"Not only will we have these speakers in the field, but we will fill every hall in every town with lesser lights, and I promise the governor will be sorry he came. We are republicans here, and we will not sit down and see our republican nominees scored, even by the chief executive of the state. This means fight to the finish if he begins, and more than that, our speakers will follow him to adjoining counties, and have positive assurances that Senator Spooner will be back here to help us if it is possible. There will be no lack of enthusiasm in this county from now on. It will be a whirlwind campaign from start to finish. There is no giving back now. Fight is the word from now on if the governor attacks our republican nominees."

In deciding the question the state central committee passed the following resolution: "Resolved, That it is the judgment of this meeting, most emphatically expressed, that the present republican ticket headed by former Gov. Edward Scotfield, be kept in the field, and we pledge to him and his associates our most enthusiastic support, and that the state central committee be heartily commended for the work already accomplished, and that the campaign be vigorously pushed from now until the date of election."

State Committee's Appeal
To the thoughtful and conservative voters of Wisconsin:
The republican state ticket headed by former Gov. Edward Scotfield will remain in the field, notwithstanding reports to the contrary, and one of the most vigorous campaigns ever waged in Wisconsin will be carried on in the interests of that ticket.

We call for volunteers in every ward, town, and village to meet and organize at once where organizations have not already been perfected. Where such organizations already exist, it is expected that steps will be taken at once to pass the word to open the battle.

Within the next twenty-four hours let those who believe in representative government, in conservative, constructive principles, in the stability of our institutions, assemble in their several communities and at their county seats and arrange for a meeting to be held within forty-eight hours for the purpose of enlisting volunteers who will organize and appoint committees whose duty it shall be to perfect organizations in every voting precinct.

Let fire and enthusiasm mark every step. We have ample time to bring our arguments home to every voter before election day if we act at once, and this is the real end and object of the work.

Let the people of Wisconsin know that a sound and wise conservatism can be made aggressive. Our purpose is not negative, but positive and constructive.

Let every true republican awake and prepare to redeem the state of Wisconsin from misrule and corruption.

MAY PROSECUTE MEAT PACKERS

Federal Representatives Probe the Methods Revealed to the Commerce Commission.

PRIVATE CAR LINES ON THE RACK

Alleged Scheme of Big Packers To Secure Rebates While Keeping Within the Limits of the Law, Is Laid Bare.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.—Prosecution of the big meat packing concerns and the railroads for violating injunctions of the federal courts regarding rebates on freight rates is likely to result from the investigation which the interstate commerce commission has been making of the relations between the private car lines and railroad companies.

It developed that Oliver E. Pagin, formerly assistant United States district attorney here, came from Washington as the representative of the department of justice, to learn through the investigation by the interstate commerce commission whether the beef packers, through their private car lines, have received rebates or special concessions or commissions from the railroads, contrary to the anti-trust law and the interstate commerce act.

Ask for Transcript.

Mr. Pagin and United States District Attorney Bethea requested the interstate commerce commission to furnish them at the earliest possible moment with a complete transcript of the testimony given during the investigation, as a basis for the proceedings to be instituted in the federal courts here against the packers and the railroads.

J. P. Lyman, president of the National Packing company and its private car line, refused to answer questions by the interstate commerce commission as to the stockholders of the companies. The National Packing company is commonly known as the "beef trust," and to establish the fact that through its private car line the packers practically received substantial rebates in freight rates was the object of the questions of the commission.

Refuses to Answer.

"The National Packing company owns the stock of the National car line," admitted Mr. Lyman, but by the advice of his lawyer he refused to answer the question, "Are the packers the owners of the stock of the National Packing company?"

Mr. Lyman also admitted, with reluctance, that the National car line hauled the packing house products of the G. H. Hammond company, the Anglo-American packing company, the Omaha Packing company and the St. Louis Dressed Beef company. He denied that it hauled the products of Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co., or the Cudahy Packing company.

He also refused to answer what packing companies were merged into the National Packing company. He admitted that the National car line operated fifty refrigerator cars leased from Swift & Co.

Tells of Contract.

"What contracts has your car line with railroads?" asked the attorney for the commission.

LADY CURZON IS NOT SO WELL NOW

"We have a contract with the Pere Marquette railroad by which it agrees to maintain for seven years the present mileage to us on our cars of three-fourths of a cent a mile and a rate not exceeding 45 cents per 100 pounds on packing-house products from Chicago to New York."

That the railroads act as collectors for private car lines of exorbitant rates for icing and "blacklist" shippers who refuse to pay any charges demanded by the private car lines was testified to by several witnesses. In this manner the railroads make a special concession to the packers and other owners of private car lines, practically amounting to rebates on their own freight traffic.

415 Per Cent Advance.

E. G. Davies, a commission merchant on South Water street, showed that Armour & Co., since they secured exclusive contracts with the railroads, had advanced rates 415 per cent on fruit from Michigan to Chicago.

By other documentary evidence Mr. Davies showed that the rates charged on fruit shipped in Armour cars from other states were from two to four times as much as the charges for refrigerator cars owned and led by railroads.

Because he would not pay $45 for the icing of a car of fruit from Tennessee to Chicago, Mr. Davies testified, an attorney for Armour & Co. threatened to destroy his credit and thus drive him out of business.

ASTONISHING FIGURES.
Some astonishing figures as to the profits received by Armour & Co. for ice for the Georgia peach crop alone during the period of six weeks were given by George F. Mead of Boston, vice president of the National League of Commission Merchants.

The average price of 12 cents per crate, based on shipments to all points, netted the Armour car-line for ice alone for the Georgia peach crop this year $336,000. In addition the railroads paid 1 cent per mile to Armour & Co. for every mile one of their refrigerator cars traveled, empty as well as loaded.

Oil Man Makes Denial.
Henry E. Folton, vice-president of the Union Tank Line company, controlled by the Standard Oil company, came from New York to appear before the commission and deny flatly the charges made by J. W. Midgley that the Union Tank line was used by the Standard Oil company to secure special privileges practically amounting to rebates from the railroads.

Instead of making the enormous profits alleged by Mr. Midgley, the Union Tank line in 1903 was operated at a loss of 3.8 per cent on the investment, not including the customary allowance of 6 per cent of earnings for depreciation of the equipment.

SENATOR BIRD GAVE ADDRESS

FILLED REV. COLVILLE'S PLACE
ON SYNOD PROGRAM.

"WERE HE IN THE PULPIT"

Senator Whitehead Also Called Upon
—Report of Committee on Home Missions.

At the session yesterday afternoon Rev. George M. Colville, D. D., of Racine, was on the program for an address on "The Home Mission Problem," but being unable to appear State Senator Bird, of Waukesha, read an able paper on "Were He in the Pulpit." Mr. Bird is a prominent member of the Presbyterian church in the state and interested in all its progressive movements. Mr. Bird has also done a great deal of individual Christian work. In his home town several years ago he built at his own expense a library free for the people and especially for the lumber jacks, the predominant class in Wausau, the people aimed to reach. He secured a large number of good books and interesting to fill the shelves, at the gift of many people in the country with whom he had acquainted his plans. A reading room particularly for the use of these hardy forest laborers was prepared in the building and also was there established a restaurant furnishing good short order meals at regular restaurant prices. "This one library accomplished more," is the statement of one who knows, "than all the other Christian organization put together in this district." And so these thoughts that he uttered yesterday afternoon, coming from such a man, should bear weight in consideration of the fact that the general problem of the Synod at the present meeting is how to reach the classes not now reached by the Christian church. Mr. Bird said:

Former Paper.

At the last meeting of the "Winnipeg" the privilege was granted me of reading a paper entitled: "If I Were in the Pulpit."

As the courtesy of the Synod has now been extended to me, I will continue the discussion of the same topic. In the former paper, some reference was made to physical health as a necessity to the full working of heart and brain—to intellectual culture as being always expected of the preacher—to holding a professorship as a teacher and also as a preacher, which was considered inadvisable—some reference was made to habits of speaking, personal appearance and mannerisms. Intercourse with, and practical knowledge of the masses of the people was urged—but perhaps the strongest point urged was, that the Gospel Message in its plainness, its simplicity, and its beauty—that this should be the first and the most important message in all preaching—to all classes—the story that "never grows old"—the only words of eternal life.

I trust you will pardon another word on this same topic, for I have so long sat in the pew, and associated with others in the same position, that I think I voice the thoughts of very many, probably a large majority, the expression of one common desire.

We go up to the house of the Lord after a week of toil and perplexity. The farmer has met with loss from the elements, and in spite of six days of hard physical effort is disappointed and weary. The manufacturer is burdened with anxiety that his expenses exceed his income. The merchant has unsalable goods. The professional man, the banker and railroad man—all have encountered trials and difficulties, while to the housewife and mother ever falls a double portion of burdens and annoyances, and which, in spite of her great forbearance, result in sadness and discouragement, as Saturday night comes around.

The average congregation is made up largely of people whose minds are in this condition of unrest and disappointment. Also they come with the feeling that they have been too "anxious" about the morrow, and too intense in the service of Mammon—too forgetful of gratitude to the Giver of all good.

These people do not want to hear a learned discourse—the result of scientific investigation—nor philosophical research. It is the gospel, the good news of salvation that they want—no matter how many times they have heard it before, and from the same speaker. Read them the promise of seed time and harvest. "Yea, the Lord shall give them increase; and our land shall yield her increase." That "all things work together for good to them that love God." It is encouragement and refreshing that these occupants of the pew want. Have the psalms of David ever lost one beautiful gem by the reading over and over so many times.

Have not the parables of the rich man and Lazarus, and the prodigal son, ever grown greater in our minds the more we consider them—the most practical as well as the most wonderful words ever spoken?

No, if I were in the pulpit, very often would I take my text from such passages as these, "Come unto me, and we will labor and be heavy laden, and I will give you rest." "Rest in the Lord and wait patiently for him." "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." I should not try to search out profound truths and the deep things—certainly not things of this nature that pertained to science—to supply the wants of congregation, who thus came before me—conscious of the burden of sin, and who, in the struggle of life had permitted their eyes to become clouded to the pity and forgiveness of their Heavenly Father. The occupant of the pew desires and needs a fresh supply of the bread of life, and the writer of Salvation to satisfy his hungry and thirsty soul. Only food is refreshing and nourishing, though we have partaken of it many times before.

An able minister once said to me, in sadness and discouragement: "I have exhausted all my resources—my supply has run out." Not long afterwards, he left the ministry. He had exhausted his supply of literary matter. No doubt he had been teaching "as the scribes"—eloquently expounding the wisdom of men. But the one whom the common people "heard gladly" was the one who spoke to them the "words of eternal life." The common people have not changed. There is substitute for the sunshine, "Jesus and His Love," and indeed the "light of the world" infinitely above every other subject that engages the human mind, this one stands out in its all absorbing interest to a perishing people; and the pulpit is dear to us because it is there we hear this sweet story that "never grows old." While sin and sorrow and death exist, this Gospel Message is the one thing needful.

Division of Labor—Pastors to Direct and Superintend.

If I were in the pulpit, I would not try to do too great a share of the work myself, but would lay the burden and responsibility as far as practicable upon my helpers.

The report has recently appeared in the papers that during the recent great battle of Liao Yang, General Oyama, the commander of all the Japanese forces, amused himself by fishing—depending upon his subordinate, each one to execute the duties assigned to him. No one believes this, but I have myself seen the commanding officer of an army sit on his horse during a battle, not excited—apparently almost indifferent. Not only were the lives of his soldiers and the cause for which they fought at stake, but his own honor also—which to the soldier is more than life itself. Did he make a mistake?

His work had been done before the battle began. With the utmost care every detail had been considered—the position and strength of the enemy determined, troops placed in the most advantageous position, and every subordinate commander had been fully instructed as to what was expected of him, and the responsibility of doing his share rested squarely and fully upon each one of those commanders. Every one of them knew where the commanding general could be found, and in case of emergency a quick report could be made, and the remedy provided.

Had this commanding general given his personal attention to any one part of the field, a lack of attention elsewhere might have resulted in disaster. His work was to plan and to watch.

In the pastor the commanding officer—with the session for corps commanders—the leader of the missionary societies, the S. S. Supt., and the leaders of the other organizations the subordinates upon whom, each and every one, should rest responsibility? The idea of responsibility resting upon these helpers is important, for this is a source of development. I know an Elder, in a Presbyterian church who is an able man, intellectually as well as physically. He is strong and capable, but modest to a fault. His pastor, in his kindness and benevolence, from public duty, thinking he is doing him a favor, if the pastor would sit on his horse (figuratively speaking), and load responsibility over on to the broad shoulders of his Elder, one would be relieved and the other benefited. When the civil war began neither Grant, Sherman or Sheridan had ever ranked higher than a captain—and Grant then said that he did not think that he had capacity to command more than a regiment. Conditions developed them; have we not in many of our churches, not confining our inquiry to the Eldership, but by no means omitting them, men and women who could be brought forward into active work, to share the burdens with the pastor, to their own advantage, and to the advantage and enlargement of the work? Is it not quite frequently, perhaps I could ask generally the case, that the pastor tries to do too much of the labor himself? Are we not in quite too many cases permitting this latent undeveloped talent to remain unused and the overworked pastor carrying the burden that others should share? In a city that I visited not very long ago, I was told that one of the churches had sixteen stations in different parts of that city, and the surrounding country where services of some sort were conducted each week, all by members of that church. Evidently that pastor had placed responsibility upon his subordinates, and thus developed them. And were not these helpers, themselves benefited thereby—and was not the aggregate of work accomplished much greater than would have been the case had the pastor himself attempted to do the bulk of it?

If I were in the pulpit I would carefully measure the capacity and possibilities of all my members, and just as far as at all practicable, would place them in responsible positions—ensuring that a large part of my own duty to be to make the plans and then sit upon my horse and watch.

A Plea for Youth.

suggestion only. It is a plea for our youth.

While every human being is a brother for whom Christ died, and therefore the obligation is inexpressibly great to rescue every one—still is it not wise to direct our efforts where the most pressing need exists, and where the most good can be accomplished? To my mind this work is with the youth, and hence for them is my special plea. If these could be restrained from following in the footsteps of the adult, who are mere cumberers of the earth, and to live up to all human degradation and moral filth. This thought is harsh if pressed too far. Another way to express it is, that if no more grists were brought to the gin mill, and all other self-indulgence mills, these factories would soon run dry.

Just now I will refer to boys and young men only. Probably a mass of 200 more or less, of this class belong to the average congregation; and if I were in the pulpit, what could I do to shape them up to decent and clean lives—and then on to the beautiful religious life?

First of all I would get as good a knowledge as possible of boy nature. To recall our own experience in boyhood days should help some—but a large allowance must be made for differences in the nature, as well as the surroundings of each one.

Most boys, perhaps we can say of them, have ambition. With some it is very weak, and with very many it is not evidenced in an inclination to right things, but rather to the bad. But if it exists at all it is an evidence that there is some ground to work upon. Some of our so-called "bad boys" are in their folly and ignorance, seeking celebrity along that line. Few boys, if any, deliberately intend to become worthless wrecks and low down criminals. In some way they expect to have a home and a place in society in later years.

Of course there are very many, a large majority of our American boys and young men, that are high minded, with lofty ideals and noble purposes in life. These need no consideration in this discussion. We are looking for a method to rescue those that are going downward.

Concluding then, that all boys have some ambition, even though it may be urging them to evil in some cases, it is evident that their need is sound knowledge, information and common sense. But how get this to them and into their heads?

The old adage that the "hare must be caught before it is eaten" applies here in full force. Some boys are as much afraid of the preacher as is the hare of the hunter.

My first effort would be to become acquainted with many boys as individuals so that I could call them by name. A boy is very sensitive, and it is recognizing his importance, and gratifying to him to be known, and to hear his name called. I would also show my interest in them by giving some attention to their games, if manly—or if any one was sick or in any way unfortunate, prove to them that I was a real friend.

Having thus made some progress, I would then have a meeting for boys some evening, in a hall or any suitable place, other than the church. At this first meeting I would give them a good ringing of the bell of their own locality. Perhaps of the Fox tribe of Indians attacking Fort Ponchartraine (Detroit), and trying to burn it with their blazing arrows, and then their retreat into Wisconsin. Subsequent meetings would bring in a few more boys. The story of Jno. G. Paton's heroism in the New Hebrides could come in later. Let them form clubs, and a bit of rivalry between themselves in getting knowledge of some given historical event, might increase the interest.

All this, with variations and infinitum, would be my effort to catch the hare. I should hope also by these means to get into their heads some idea of the greatness of the country of which most of them were citizens—the great coast of this country, and the obligation resting upon each one to do his share in sustaining it.

If by much prayer and unwearied effort, I could install patriotism in their wayward heads, it would be one good step in the right direction. I should hope that my meetings could be brought to the lecture room of the church, in time—and that all this skirmishing work, would lead up to uniting the young people's religious societies and the Sunday school, in due time.

If I could sing, or if I could find some to give this important help, I should feel the more confident of success—for one of the great factors to uplift the world is music.

I should expect of course that their progressive steps would lead up to positive religious teachings in time. When that time came, I would make no mincing of words with boys. Give them plainly the words of the Master of Nicodemus. The fundamental doctrine of conversion, a turning about—putting off the old, and putting on the new—give the teachings in positive plain language that will insure respect, frankness and sincerity in the heart of the boy. It is useless to mention in speaking of Presbyterians, that no devices of man are, in the slightest degree, a substitute for the work of the Holy Spirit—and yet it is sometimes a satisfaction to mention this important and well established doctrine.

If there is any merit in this method of catching the wayward boys—the "clubs" or the "gangs" or whatever name it might be called, it would have to be a continuous work. Herein would be a place for some of the subordinate workers, referred to in a former paragraph, to assist the pastor. Some of the boys who had been themselves rescued would doubt develop sufficiently to fill this place, and be especially adapted for such work.

It is not presumed that these suggestions in their entirety could be adopted by any church, but possibly the general plan with variations to suit local conditions, may be of some service. The basis of all is a very deep sense of the importance of the

Iowa, Colorado, Utah, and California
From a Car-Window—Vineyards and Orange Groves.

Long Beach, Cal., Oct. 7, 1904. Jansville Gazette: Thinking perhaps our many friends in Jansville would like to know of the pleasures of the party which left Jansville Sept. 26th for a trip across the Rockies to the land of sunshine and flowers on the shores of the mighty Pacific, I will try an describe our trip in the columns of your paper.

The party consisted of Messrs. and Mesdames R. L. Dodge, A. W. Dodge, R. W. Dodge, J. Proctor; Mesdames S. A. Carman, I. A. Whiffen, Alice Human; Messrs. S. A. Strang, G. T. Barlow, Wallace Carman and Winfield Proctor; Misses Effie Barlow, Jessie Dodge, Bertha Proctor.

We left Jansville in a private car at 7:10 p. m. over the Northern P. road. At Chicago we were switched off on a train bound for the west. We crossed the Mississippi at 3 a. m. Tuesday.

When we awoke that morning we were in Iowa at Cedar Rapids, a beautiful town. We spent the forenoon passing across Iowa where many sheep and cattle were grazing. At Montevideo we saw the Indian reservation on the wooded hillsides. The huts scattered here and there, were made of poles bent rounding and covered over with straw, resembling Esquimaux huts in their shape, while others lived in tents. They had kindled their campfires and were preparing their breakfast.

At Ames we saw the Iowa State Agricultural College farm which contains about 900 acres of land. A double-track bridge in the world. It is 186 ft. high, 2634 feet long and contains 5,600 tons of steel. It was over this bridge McKinley's special passed on its western tour.

Council Bluffs is designated by the high bluffs about it. At Omaha were the immense stock and lumber yards. At night we passed through a desert with the little prairie dogs running along and the coyotes feeding on their prey. In the morning we awoke to find ourselves in Colorado. The distant mountains looked like a cloud on the horizon. To one who has never seen a mountain this description may help. Pile rocks on rocks in a great pile more than a mountain high and break with chains, gorges and canyons, with mountain streams rushing through. Adorn the banks with pines, evergreen and mountain flowers. This is one mountain. Group many into a range and then cap with snow and you have the mountain scenery as nearly as I can describe it.

Castle Rock looms up from yon lofty mountain. The sun shining on it gives one a feeling he can never describe. Near Denver we passed a mountain covered with cream sandstone rocks called Monument Park. Several mountains of different shapes may be found in this vicinity. The table mountain, a mountain looking like an old castle crumbling to decay, and one like an old fort with all of special mention. These are all covered with sage brush and pine. The cliff dwellings may be seen in their lofty positions.

The city of Denver is situated at the edge of foothills and the beginning of the rocks that climb up to the snow caps are lost in the clouds. Here at Denver we took the Denver Rio Grande or Scenic Route and truly the last name fits it. A perfect heaven to lovers of nature. It seems as if some fairy had waved a wand before your eyes and you were in a dream.

On we went through Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou. The great mountains that are sure to seem guarding their cities.

Pike's Peak was nearly hidden by the clouds, so that we did not see it at its best.

Near Colorado Springs we passed Cheryenne Canon where lie the remains of Helen Hunt Jackson. The mountains covered with red and yellow autumn leaves and mountain flowers and the babbling streams paints a picture on one's mind too grand for language to describe.

Next came Florence. Off in the distance on the mountain sides was the mining district with its smelting furnaces, while nearer were the oil wells. This was certainly a typical mining town.

After leaving Canon City where the state penitentiary is, we again came to the beautiful mountains in all their grandeur and then the Royal Gorge. When entering the canon, surprise and almost terror comes.

The train rolls round a long curve under a straight wall of granite towering far above. Here is the swinging bridge, suspended from the rocky walls over the Arkansas river.

I told you nothing of Wyoming for we were in the Land of No! when we passed through. The morning sun found us on one great expanse of sand. Great drifts of sand filled mountain high of purple and pinkish tints, scattered over. Cactus blooms "born to blush unseen and waste their sweetness on the desert air." This is Great Salt Lake desert. At one place on the desert they were making salt by evaporation. Our next stop was at Salt Lake City. It is situated at the foot of the Wasatch Mountains. The Temple Square consisting of the temple, tabernacle and assembly hall, arrested our attention. The temple is constructed of light gray granite. It is surrounded by six towers, three on the east and three on the west end of the structure. The tabernacle is a single large arch unsupported by pillar or arch, in appearance it resembles a huge egg cut in two lengthwise.

Great Salt Lake may be seen in the distance all the way from Salt Lake City to Ogden. At Ogden bread was forty cents a loaf. After leaving Ogden, we were soon on the Ogden cut-off, the new road just finished, over the lake a distance of thirty-five miles, consisting of seventeen miles of trestle and the remainder a road bed of rock.

The waters are of a changing blue and green. Salt Lake is a beautiful lake dotted over with its mountainous islands. Then the desert again, so lifeless but still a relief from that ride over the lake. One may be thankful when he has crossed it. Utah and Colorado have every variety of scenery, from the vastness of the desert to the vastness of the mountains climbing to the skies. Canyons which awe ones soul, mountains which terrify and hold one spell-bound as he looks upon the frost-touched foliage glowing with tints of fire and gold.

From Sparks the lofty snow-capped Sierra Nevada could be seen, covered with the most magnificent pines and below the Truckee river winding in and out over the rocks. Here may be seen many typical mountain homes. As we crossed over into California we saw a great many saw mills with their thunders.

From now on until Friday evening we found scenes of the deepest interest and sublimity beauty.

From the time the road enters the crests of the summit it passes through a succession of tunnels and snow sheds. The closely connected we could scarcely tell when we entered or left a tunnel. There are 40 miles of tunnels and snow sheds costing, I believe, $10,000,000 per mile. Our train with three great engines wound around the mountains from base to peak as a huge snake. Far down below lay the most beautiful mountain lake. Looking across the valley on the opposite side we beheld our track over which we were next to pass. Leaving the summit we passed around the base of towering peaks, over high bare bridges, then through the grand old forests. Passing on, leaving the peaks behind, we turn up to Blue Canon, the roadbed on the opposite bank seemingly running parallel with our track we were traveling. The train stopped for ten minutes at Blue Canon and we all took a drink of mountain spring water, considered the best for miles around. Leaving Blue Canon we passed several small towns of no special mention. On the south side of the track was one of the grandest of Sierra gorges. The American river is compressed between two nearly perpendicular walls 2,000 feet high.

We next passed Dutch Flat where the old gold fields of 1848 were, a few being worked at the present time. From now on until we reached Sacramento, we passed vineyards, olive, peach, nut, pear and orange orchards. At some small town while the train stopped, several from our car climbed the fences and procured grapes in abundance. They were luscious and of course more so as they were stolen fruit.

At Oakland Friday evening the train was taken on the ferry and was transferred to the other side. The train being 3-12 hours late, was laid over until the next morning. We traveled through a rich farming country in San Francisco valley all day Saturday.

We reached Los Angeles at 11 a. m. Sunday. So tired but well pleased with our trip. I have said nothing of the sights outside the car, but as the shades of night were drawn there was a good view within. There were only eighteen with no upper berths taken. We had a very nice porter. An almost perfect trip from Jansville to Long Beach. No one who intends coming, ought to miss the beautiful mountain scenery we passed through.

"God was good to make the mountains, the valleys and the hills, To put the rose upon the cactus, the ripple on the hills, But if I had all the worlds of all worlds at my command, I couldn't paint a picture of the Canon of the Grande."

TOBACCO ACREAGE
DECREASES MUCH

Less Grown in Dane County But Still Less in Rock—Sugar

Beets Responsible.

The official returns from Dane county, the banner tobacco growing county in Wisconsin, gives the acreage of the 1904 crop at 12,568 1-2 acres, which is a reduction of nearly 2,500 acres over the statistics of a year ago, which were 14,928 acres. The decline in tobacco area, however, is not as great as in Rock county, for sugar beets have not yet supplanted tobacco growing there to such an extent. Only 863 3-4 acres of sugar beets are reported grown in Dane county this year, while in Rock the area is 3,390 acres and 6,048 acres of tobacco.

No trouble to prepare quick breakfast if you have Mrs. Austin's famous Pancake Flour. Ready in a minute.

Coming Attractions.

Thomas Jefferson, who has appeared here and scored a most decided hit before a large audience, made up of our best people, will return once more in that grand old play "Rip Van Winkle."

In these days when the name of Jefferson is mentioned in connection with the stage, the public anticipate a treat. And the lovers of pure, clean and wholesome plays turn out in force to greet them. Such is said to be the experience of Mr. Thomas Jefferson who is the son of Joseph Jefferson, and who will be seen here on Saturday at the Myers Grand as Rip. The play that has made the name of Jefferson a household word throughout the universe.

Those funny colored comedians, Williams and Walker, and their big company, will appear at the Myers Grand next Friday under the direction of Hurlig & Seamon, in their new musical comedy called "In Dahomey" have spared no expense in this, their latest and most pretentious production. The comedy is full of catchy music, songs, dances, specialties and ludicrous situations, causing one continuous laugh from the rise to the fall of the curtain.

Williams and Walker have great opportunities all through the comedy to introduce their versatility and they have surrounded themselves with a capable company of specialty artists, such as Lottie Williams, Ada Overton Walker, Jesse A. Shipp, George Catlin and a grand chorus of forty-five people.

The scenery is a revelation of scenic beauty and the music new, catchy and up-to-date. The music is by Will Marion Cook the lyrics by Paul Lawrence Dunbar (the colored poet), and the book by J. A. Shipp.

Janetville Daily Gazette, Oct. 13, 1864.—Still Reporting.—The Postmaster's office is still thronged with drafted men who are called upon to report there. Some have the verdict, "Physical disability," pronounced upon them and go on their way rejoicing; others are rejected for temporary disability; while still another class are invited to don the cerise cloth of our palatial Uncle Samuel, or produce a substitute. These latter articles are bringing a rather good price, ranging from $100 to $300.

It is believed however that the party will take means to put the better out of the way, in which case Raymond is pretty certain of the election.

If McClellan thinks the victorious party ought to stop the war, why don't he take those emblems of war off his shoulders? And why don't he quit taking twenty dollars a day out of the United States treasury, which he says Lincoln's administration has got into such an awful state.

Pickles for the Soldiers.—All the ladies in Jacksonville that possibly can, are requested to come to the basement of O. K. Bennett's store on Main street tomorrow with chopping knives and trays, for the purpose of making pickles for the soldiers. Come all.

NO UNIVERSITY FOR PEORIA

Jury in Carrington Will Case Awards Estate to Heirs.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 13.—The jury in the Carrington will case, in which the heirs sought to break the will, returned a verdict giving the estate to the heirs. The will of the deceased devoted his estate of $250,000 to the establishment of a university. The case was bitterly fought and lasted more than a week. Among the witnesses called upon to testify were Dr. W. R. Harper and Prof. Albion W. Small of the University of Chicago. The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

ROCK COUNTY REPUBLICANS.

Rock County has long been recognized as the banner republican county of the state. Her republicanism is of the class that has never been questioned, and her loyalty was never more pronounced than today.

On national issues the county has always been a staunch supporter of republican principles and on state issues a conservative policy has been maintained.

In the last state convention the stalwart delegation elected by a convention composed of 166 delegates county was represented by a unit, who practically voted as a unit. Legislative and county candidates were placed in the field with the same strong endorsement and the party of the state recognized the county as a leading factor for conservative government.

An effort is being made at the present time to undermine this party by the governor and his adherents, because Rock County republicanism is not La Folletteism, and not in sympathy with erratic reform.

The emissaries of the governor are already in the field and the governor himself will soon be on the ground to denounce every republican candidate placed in nomination by Rock county republicans. Why? Because the men responsible for these nominations refuse to bow to the will of a dictator.

Talk about bolters. Who are the bolters? There was no contest in Rock county and the men nominated for office were as regularly nominated as any set of men were ever nominated. They are entitled to every republican vote in the county, the governor and county clerk to the contrary, notwithstanding.

The republican party of Wisconsin is trailing its banner in the dust if it tolerates this sort of treachery and hypocrisy. The high office of governor should entitle a man to some respect but when he thinks to the level of a pettifogging politician and goes about the state preaching the doctrine of hate, and working openly to defeat the party Rock county republicans will not tolerate his course and a vigorous protest will be recorded.

The republicans of the county have confidence in Senator Whitehead. They believe that he is right in the many attitude which he has always maintained, and when either his motives or methods are attacked they will defend him. They also have confidence in Captain Norcross and they propose to send him to the assembly in spite of the governor's opposition.

Rock county republicans cannot be read out of the party by the governor and his followers. They will be found doing business at the same old stand after a disturbing governor has been forgotten.

SIMPLY SOCIALISTIC.

Mr. Starr has merely reiterated the speech he made during the spring of 1891 at Crystal Springs Park. At that time Mr. Starr was an enthusiastic socialist. If his statements can be believed, now he has succeeded in fooling the people of the county for six years that he was a republican and has gotten all they can give him he returns to his old idols. At this particular picnic referred to Starr, it is alleged, said during the course of his address: "I would like to see the republican and the democratic parties buried face downwards in the dirt so that the harder they scratched the nearer they would get to their own places." No wonder Mr. Starr can not appreciate Senator Whitehead when such thoughts as these ramble in his breast. But he is merely mouthing words that better and brainier men than he have told him to utter. After sucking the public pap for six years it is rather hard for a man to give the idea the public owe him a living. Mr. Starr is no exception to the rule. He is disgruntled at the thought of having to turn over his office to some one else. Under the primary election he could be perpetuated in office until he died of old age. No wonder he seeks to see this law go into effect. He knows Senator Whitehead has stood up manfully and fought the measure in open debate and he is fearful it will be defeated. Mr. Starr of 1891 quoted dangerous sentiments. Mr. Starr the disgruntled officeholder of 1904 also preached hearsay to the party and the words of the old lady who telephoned the Gazette this afternoon very much excited over his conduct are true. This lady said in an excited tone: "My name is Mrs. Wilson. I really thought I ought to tell the Gazette to tell Mr. Starr that he is dead in Jansville and should move back to Happy Hollow or Avon if they will allow him to live there."

Who are the bolters in Rock county? The republicans are not. As Senator Spooner said: "Something is the matter with somebody or something is the matter with the republican party. Now nothing has ever been the matter with the republican party so it must be with somebody."

Mr. Starr thinks he has been misquoted as to his speech at Onondaga. Perhaps he will now deny his socialist statement at Crystal Springs Park. If he does there are numerous persons who can take affidavit to its being uttered on that particular occasion.

Senator Whitehead is busy these days receiving congratulations in the manner in which he has brought the rabbits out of their holes into the open where they can be marked down.

Congressman Cooper is to come to Jansville, ignore his friends and speak under the auspices of the La Follette leaders.

Mr. Starr missed his political party. He should belong to the free-silver, popocratic, democratic, anarchistic branch of the Know Nothings.

The democrats do not seem to figure very much this year except in localities where they have the help of the La Follette followers.

As the time for election draws near the fight becomes more bitter than ever.

The governor is to tour the county in his automobile, if the old thing does not break down.

PRESS COMMENT.

Menominee Herald-Leader: In Wisconsin the political atmosphere has been cleared until it is as transparent as mud.

Neenah Times: Politics are becoming mixed for a fact. At Appleton they talk of a Roosevelt-Peck party and in Menasha they talk of a Parker-La Follette club.

La Crosse Chronicle: The Chronicle will oppose the governor and all candidates for the legislature who owe their nomination to him or who are pledged to support his measures.

Green Bay Gazette: And now that there is at last but one straight republican ticket before the people, let us find out who is the candidate for state treasurer upon it.

Joe Konkel, in Superior Clarion-Leader: I appeal to my thousands of readers to throw aside party politics in this campaign. I appeal to you to look the issues squarely in the face. I appeal to you to cast one vote for the state of Wisconsin on Nov. 8 and let the political ambition of "Bob" La Follette go to the devil. Let us see if we can't have peace for the next two years.

Madison Journal: The name of Scofield at the head of a ticket suggests a retrospect. Most people look back with something of longing to a dignified administration of public affairs, when executive preference went to the man fitted for the place, regardless of his being part of a political machine. There was then a feeling of comfort in the absence of suspicion that the future of personal preference depended on the ability to echo the expression of a single sentiment.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The anti-La Follette state ticket headed by ex-Governor Edward Scofield is in the field as a protest against the revolutionary and destructive policy of our present governor. If it is continued in the field until election day, the present disagreeable conditions will endure. There will be a perpetual conflict between the anti-La Follette candidates and committees on the one side and the La Follette candidates and committees on the other. This conflict and contention will be bitter and unrelenting and will seriously interfere with the success of the republican national ticket, the congressional ticket, the legislative tickets and the various county tickets. If the Scofield ticket should be withdrawn at once, there will be but two tickets in the field, the La Follette ticket and the democratic ticket. Voters could then express their preferences without prejudice and the final result would settle the question of La Folletteism for another two years at least.

NEW FEATURES OF FOOTBALL GAMES

University is Showing the World the Example of Politics in Athletics.

The event of this week at the University of Wisconsin football training quarters has been the strike of the leading members of the first eleven and the retreat of the coaches. The vacancies on the student board of athletic directors was filled by Coach Curtis, Kilpatrick and O'Dea by non-football favorites and Vanderboom, Findlay, Kemp, Grogan and others rebelled, some of them refusing to play. The coaches received their favorites gave up the coveted places and Vanderboom and Kemp were placed on the board and Bertie was elected president of the athletic association. The players returned to the game and it is announced that peace and aggressive football spirit prevails again.

It is believed that the incident will disastrously affect the discipline of the coaches over the athletes and it is declared that after the coaches had acted they ought under no circumstances to have given in to the men. Curtis says he did not want football men to have athletic management over their minds and for that reason used his influence against the players. Coach O'Dea says that the football team has dominated the athletic board to the exclusion of crew representatives and Coach Kilpatrick says he wanted good men on the board to represent all departments. Graduate Manager Kilpatrick has had the misfortune to be attacked repeatedly by the official paper of the university and a systematic effort appears to be in progress to remove him. His contract expires next June and it is known that he has opened negotiations for a place as track team coach in the east.

A decided improvement in the spirit and work of the Wisconsin football team has taken place since the coaches acceded to the demands of the striking players. The strikers have returned to the game and the practice is spirited and better than it has been this season. For this reason the game with Notre Dame at Milwaukee Saturday is expected to result with a goodly score rolled up in favor of the Badgers and new hope is taken regarding the Michigan game to be played in Madison two weeks later. The only player who struck and who has not returned is Robinson, who left for Milwaukee, declaring that politics were mixed up in the training of the team and as his father was an active player on the team. This suggestion is resolutely denied by the coaches and leading football men.

FATHER GIVES UP BABE FOR THE SUM OF 1 CENT

Tells Court He Relinquished His Right to Offspring Because He Could Not Support Family.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 13.—"I, Thomas Bell, do resign all claim to my daughter, Rose Gwendolyn Bell, on condition that said baby be taken care of, and in consideration of which I resign all claim to said Rose Gwendolyn Bell in favor of John and Rose McDermott for the sum of 1 cent."

This agreement was produced when Mrs. Frances Bell, mother of 4-year-old Rose Gwendolyn Bell, appeared to demand possession of the child. Mrs. Bell said when she was asked to sign her name to this agreement she did not know its purport, nor that she was selling her fourteenth child. Thomas Bell, the husband, then told the judge that he was unable to support such a large family and had promised to give this child to his sister, Mrs. McDermott.

The case was dismissed.

ORDER NO. 73

Which Judge Parker Will Not Have a Chance to Revolve.

Nothing in the Democratic quiver of whoppers against President Roosevelt has failed so utterly as that arranging his pension order, No. 78, making the proof of certain acts by old soldiers evidential facts of certain degrees of disability.

If the order had been cunningly devised to betray the great constitutional lawyers of the Democracy into making more than the usual kinds of sentimental asses of themselves it could not have succeeded more completely and ludicrously. When the great "Parker Constitution Club," of New York, started in to arraign Theodore Roosevelt for going through the constitution as if it were a paper hoop in a circus ring, it attacked his issuance of order No. 78 in these words: "We find that President Roosevelt deliberately disregarded article I, section 9, of the constitution, providing 'No money shall be drawn from the treasury, but in consequence of appropriations made by law.'"

Now, what are the facts? Order No. 78 assumed that an old soldier who is 62 years of age is probably able to earn only one-half of the support the statute provides in case of total disability, at which stage he arrives when he is 70, and says he shall be entitled to the munificent sum of $6 per month as a pension; and it finds that at 65 he is two-thirds disabled and entitled to $8.

There can be no serious objection to the principle of the order, which is based on the experience of mankind as to the gradual decay of human powers. By reason of strength many men are as able to "earn a support" at 70 as at 50, but the vast majority at 60 have passed the line where they are fully capable of doing so in "the performance of manual labor," and the evil days approach when "the grasshopper shall be a burden and desire shall fail."

Order No. 78 merely recognizes the course of nature, but it draws no money out of the treasury without authority of law. It was issued April 23, 1904, to be effective April 23, 1904; Congress being in session it was reported to that body with the request that $1,500,000 be appropriated to carry it into effect. The sum was embodied in the pending deficiency bill, after free discussion the money was voted, and in due order under the act of congress, the pensions began to issue, and not till then. Every cent paid under order No. 78 was drawn from the treasury in consequence of "an appropriation made by law."

Exit the Parker Constitution Club, of New York, with its constitutional ears at half mast. Now, mark the sequel: On Sept. 10 last, $1,110,000 was covered back into the treasury as the unexpended balance of the appropriation of $1,500,000, after paying $390,000 on 18,627 claims adjudicated in April, May and June to the end of the fiscal year. Of the certificates issued only 2,450 were for original pensions to veterans who had reached the age of 62 or upward, and 14,768 were increases allowed to claimants who were receiving pensions for disability less than the amount to which they were entitled under the pension for age.

Thus, it will be perceived, the dread of a heavy pension raid on the treasury by reason of order No. 78 has gone glimmering along with the constitutional hysterics of the Parker Constitution Club, of New York.

"Our foreign policy has been not only highly advantageous to the United States, but hardly less advantageous to the world as a whole. Peace and good will have followed in its footsteps."

Tom Watson finds in the visit of ex-Senator Jones of Arkansas to Expos occasion for this latest bit of platy for the Democratic candidate: "Poor Parker! His burdens were already heavy. Too much Cleveland, too much Hill, too much Belmont, too much McKim, too many slight bits on Tom Taggart, too much Garretts, too much Jennings with the old English language, too much formality generally—but when Jones of Arkansas rolled up, we could almost see the same old pick and spade and shovel with which he dug the graves for the Democratic national candidate in the memorable campaign of 1896 and 1900." In truth, it was hard that the judge should have to endure a visit from the first Democratic national grave digger a month previous to his political decease.

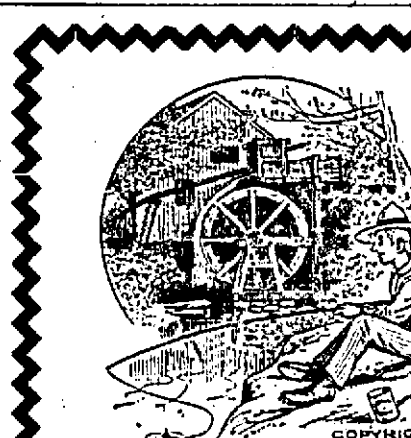

Boss Patrick H. McCarren has indirectly conceded that Roosevelt will carry New York by 60,000 to 60,000. In discussing what should be the proper betting odds between Higgins and Herrick, candidates for governor of New York, he said, it was an even thing, and immediately thereafter in answer to another question claimed that Higgins would run 50,000 or 60,000 behind Roosevelt. Putting two and two together would indicate that there is no doubt in the boss' mind how New York will go in the national election.

A vote for Judge Parker in the coming election will be a vote of censure on Theodore Roosevelt. It is inconceivable how any patriotic, full-blooded American can take that position toward a man of President Roosevelt's character and record.

If there is a citizen of the United States anywhere who has too much business and too much employment, and longer for the stagnation that prevailed from 1893 to 1898, he can contribute to that end by voting the Democratic ticket this year.

PECULIAR DEATH CASE

BAFFLES DETECTIVES

Pillow Bathed in Blood, but No Evidence Can Be Found as to Cause of New York Man's Demise.

New York, Oct. 13.—Lying dead in his bed in his apartments at 43 Hoyt street, Brooklyn, with a stiletto in his hand, his body twisted as if he had died struggling hard, his head and his pillows bathed in blood, was found a young German whose name is believed to have been Harry Telta. Despite the blood on the bed not a mark or wound was found upon the body, and there was absolutely nothing to indicate how his death had been caused.

No clew of any sort could be found by which it could be decided whether the young man had committed suicide or had been murdered.

A strange feature of the case is that on the previous afternoon the young man had returned to Mrs. Henrietta McDonald a key which had previously been in the possession of a beautiful girl of about 22 years, who had frequently called upon Telta.

A hypodermic needle and an empty vial which had contained a narcotic drug of some sort were found in a pocket of his coat.

Gas was flowing in the room, but the windows were open.

REAL REASONS OF THE POLITICIANS

SENATOR BIRD OF MARINETTE TALKS REAL FACTS.

TALKS OF SEN. WHITEHEAD

Tells Why He Should Be Re-Elected to the State Senate—Facts Worth Considering.

State Senator H. P. Bird of Marinette county was found by a Gazette reporter in our city and the question was at once propounded whether or not he was on political business.

"No sir," was the response. "I am here to attend the synod meeting of our church. But I find there is politics or rather strife and contention in the air in Rock county. It seems to be an individual fight to beat Senator Whitehead, so far as I have discovered as yet."

"Were you closely associated with Senator Whitehead in the last session of the legislature?"

"Yes, sir; and why any one in his district should oppose him, is a mystery to me. First of all, he was the most influential man in the senate, a leader without rival or equal. His long service and familiarity with parliamentary usages is one source of strength. Beyond that he is very familiar with all parts of the state, and well knows the needs of every section. Then, too, he is an able speaker and a strong debater. But Whitehead's strength as a legislator and his claim upon his constituents for support, is not his unflinching integrity and his sincerity of purpose, always following his very best judgment in supporting or opposing any and all measures. Every measure that is for the benefit of the people of the state finds in him a staunch friend—no matter who endorses it—no matter whether it originates with the radicals or conservatives—you may be sure Sen. Whitehead will support it if, in his best judgment, the measure is based upon equity, and will promote the welfare of the people."

"Did you not come in conflict with him in any measure?"

"Yes, I did—but harmony is not an agreement as to all detail, but in the main purpose to be accomplished. We did not always agree as to minor matters, but we did agree in working for the good of the state."

"What about tax committee matters? That committee is charged with holding back the bill for the ad valorem assessments of railroads until the freight rate bill was killed. Is that true?"

"Such a statement is false—a falsehood pure and simple. That bill was framed by the tax commission, Judge Gilson and G. W. Curran. I have always supposed that Senator Whitehead was consulted in drawing up the bill, but cannot say as to that. As soon as the bill reached the tax committee of which Whitehead was chairman, it was given the right of way, so to speak, over all other business. The principal officials of the leading railroads were invited to confer with the committee and responded. Joint meetings of the assembly and senate committee were held. Section by section the bill was considered, charges argued, and with as little delay as was possible, in consideration of its importance, the bill was completed by the tax committee. The only delay beyond what was an absolute necessity, was caused by members of the committee who were considered to be radicals, in considering whether or not to support the bill, after it was fully completed. Every conservative member of that committee stood for the bill, the only hesitation, being on the part of radical members."

"As to the so-called 'freight rate bill,' why, we supposed that that would pass the assembly, and come to the senate for consideration, and was busy in getting the assessment bill out of our hands that we might be ready to take up that bill when it came to us."

"The entire work of that tax committee was a constant and earnest effort to equalize taxes, just as far as possible, and to do away with existing evils and inequalities as far as possible, to do so. There was no partisanship in it from first to last. If the voters of the twenty-second senatorial district keep Senator Whitehead in the senate, they may know to a certainty that their interests will be intelligently and impartially cared for. It is a wonder to me that he has any opposition whatever. A man of his ability, experience, and integrity is rarely found. The opposition must originate from outside his district, and for partisan purposes. So it seems to me."

"I would not talk so much on a matter of this sort, did it not appear to me that the effort to injure Senator Whitehead was so clearly unjust and unfair. As conditions are I am glad to say all I can in his support for he so richly deserves it. It was the understanding all through the session that tax matters should have the first attention—should be kept at the front, and have the preference over other legislation."

REGISTRATION IS TO BE VERY LARGE

In Janesville From Present Indications—Two More Chances to Qualify.

Those who did not register Tuesday and Wednesday will have an opportunity to do so on November 1 and possibly on November 2. Owing to the consolidation of the voting precincts the hards have had more work than they could attend to comfortably and an extra day will probably be taken on that account. Those whose names are on the poll list are not required to register again, but it is well to have them checked off. The registration promises to be large in every ward, particularly in the first and third. The returns for the two days' work are not yet in.

At nine the business meeting was called to order and reports of the special, standing, and temporary committees were given.

Afternoon Meeting

This afternoon at two were held Presbyterian meetings in the different parts of the church and at two-thirty the regular session opened with an address by Rev. J. L. Marquis of Neenah, son of the great Chicago divine, Rev. D. Marquis, D. D., on the subject "The Onward Movement of Foreign Missions." Rev. W. O. Carrier, pastor of Carroll college, the state institution supported by the Presbyterian church, and who has spoken from the local pulpit several times during the last year, delivered an address on "Our Synod College." The final service was by Rev. Willis G. Craig of Chicago who spoke on "The Duty of the Church to Christian Education." Rev. Thompson of New York city, secretary of the Home Missionary board, delivered the principal address, speaking on the subject of "Home Missions and Their Advancement." During the past four years the work in Wisconsin has progressed rapidly. Over seventy per cent of the population is now being done among the Russian, Austrian, and Italian immigrants. Mr. Thompson considered the missionary work among the laboring classes as a timely and important one. The wealth of the country has increased twenty per cent the amount given to missionary work has not increased. Report of committee on resolutions of appreciation which will be read this evening. Someone once expressed his appreciation of a hearty meal by saying: "For good food, good cooks, good health, good Lord make us thankful." At a synod we have had all those causes of gratitude with the addition of good waters, also good planning, good singing, good speeches, good attendance, a good moderator, and good feeling among the members. As a synod we wish to record our thanks to the pastor and officers, the families and especially the ladies of this First Presbyterian church of Janesville for their cordial and efficient hospitality; to the choir and soloists, and to the various local committees for their personal services; and to the city press for its excellent published reports. We also thank the several noble leaders of the church from without our borders who have inspired us by their eloquent addresses. Resolved, That the brief expression of our appreciation be spread upon our minutes and be read to the congregation at the Thursday evening meeting. Committee.

SENSATIONAL CASE UP IN NOVEMBER

Parkhurst vs. Nuzum To Be Tried in Green County Circuit Court—Augrellas' Trial.

In the November term of the Green county circuit court over which Judge Dunwiddie sits the case of Parkhurst vs. Nuzum comes up. It will be remembered that Paul Parkhurst was operated upon by Drs. Nuzum, J. Sutherland, and J. L. Richards to straighten an imperfect limb. It is alleged that the operation was performed upon the perfect leg and the boy is now crippled for life. The suit is being brought for heavy damages by William Parkhurst, guardian of the boy. Attorney John L. Fisher of this city appears for the plaintiff and Burr Sprague and A. N. Randall for the defense.

The case of Knudson vs. Nuzum which was decided in favor of Nuzum in Justice Skinner's court in Broadhead has been appealed, and will come up during the same term. On the criminal calendar of the same court appears the name of Charles W. Augrellas charged with horse-stealing. Augrellas was arrested by Wallace Cochrane a decade or so ago for a similar offense and served a term in the state penitentiary. Augrellas contradicts the rule that criminals never live to be old, being now about eighty years old.

RUSSIANS MAY RETREAT AGAIN

Prediction Is Made That Kourapatkin May Be Compelled to Retreat, but That His Stopping Place Will Be Beyond Mukden.

Mukden, Oct. 13.—With steadily increasing fury the main forces of the Russian and Japanese armies are still fighting around Yental. The night of the third day of the engagement has fallen upon the field, and the battle continues with unabated bitterness.

Terrific fighting is now general along the front of the Japanese right and center.

All that is certain is that Kourapatkin has found the Japanese lines impregnable. His swift and terrific blow has failed to shatter Oyama's defense at any point.

The Russian army is now on the defensive, fighting desperately to stem a forward movement of the main strength of Oyama's forces.

Losses Are Great.

The losses in the three days' incessant fighting have been enormous on the Russian side. The Japanese wounded are pouring into Mukden in a steady stream. Nearly all of the wounded are being sent farther north. It is inferred from this that the tide of battle is threatening to turn against Kourapatkin, and that there is possibility of another Russian retreat, which will this time not stop at Mukden.

It is persistently reported that the major portion of Gen. Mitchenko's command, consisting of one brigade of infantry and 2,000 cavalry, with several guns, has been completely cut off south of the Taitse river, and its capture is imminent.

The mission of this detachment was to cut Oyama's communications with the Yalu river. It is believed that it has rushed into a trap.

Attack on Right Wing.

The brunt of the Russian attack is delivered at the right wing of the Japanese army commanded by Gen. Kuroki. At two widely separated points Kourapatkin has launched strong divisions.

The severest fighting of the engagement has taken place at Benshin, on the extreme right of Kuroki's position.

Here a Japanese detachment for more than twelve hours held back an overwhelming force of Russians.

The fighting was of incredible ferocity. Repeated infantry attacks were repulsed by the Japanese. The losses on both sides were enormous. After defending their position devotedly the Japanese were re-enforced by a strong detachment and the Russians withdrew.

Fighting Is Fierce.

A large column of Russians reached Ta' pass, east of Yental mines, on the evening of the 9th. In the night a terrific attack was launched along the entire front of the right wing of the Japanese line. Fierce fighting raged during the day and is still in progress. No fighting of importance has yet occurred in the district occupied by the left wing of the Japanese, to the westward of the railroad. An immense Russian column is engaged in the frontal attack on the Japanese center, to the north of Yental. In this part of the field of operations the fighting has been continuous since Sunday.

Reports received last night say that the fighting around Yental was of incredible fury. The Russian infantry, exposed in attacking to a sweeping force of the Japanese artillery, lost heavily. The heights to the north of the railroad station were alternately taken by Russians and Japanese after most terrific infantry fighting.

Both Armies Show Spirit.

In one of the assaults General Daniloff was severely wounded, but refused to leave the field. The spirit displayed by the troops of both armies in this fighting was amazing.

The Russians advanced again and again to the attack, raising their voices in song above the screeching of the shells. The Russian advance in this direction has been completely checked, and the Japanese have now taken the offensive. The Russian troops are fighting with desperate valor to retain the positions which they have taken. The battle here has developed into a close artillery duel and the firing is incessant. Here the fighting has raged all day and is still in progress.

FREEDOM FOR THE CHILDREN

Rev. W. F. Crafts of St. Louis Sees Desecration in Everything but the Innocent Play of Little Ones—Baseball Under the Ban.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 13.—No form of Sunday recreation, save only the simple amusements permitted children to while away the long hours of a Sabbath day, is innocent in the sight of heaven.

This is the austere code voiced before the International Sunday Rest congress, now in session at St. Louis, by the Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, Washington, D. C.

The Rev. Mr. Crafts is one of the men chiefly instrumental in closing the gates of the world's fair to the public on Sunday. He talked on "What Are Innocent Sunday Recreations?"

Defines Violations.

The man who seeks recreation at a ball game on the Sabbath is guilty of a most serious offense, according to Mr. Crafts.

The woman who takes extra pains with her Sunday dinner or her household work also commits a sin, he thinks.

The stenographer who goes to a matinee, the bookkeeper or the artisan who passes the time at cards, the millionaire who takes an airing behind his pair of "stoppers" or in his automobile, are all equally culpable, according to the code of Mr. Crafts. If these amusements are indulged in at the week's end.

The newspaper man who goes to work Sunday to get out Monday morning's newspaper has a heavy load of guilt to bear, according to the Rev. Mr. Crafts, he already has on his conscience a work which has kept thousands away from church.

Children Are Privileged.

Mr. Crafts made an exception in the case of children because he deemed their amusements harmless and their minds so formed that some form of amusement is a necessity for them.

The Rev. Mr. Crafts' remarks were received with approval by the congress and, after he had concluded, its members adopted a resolution petitioning the postmaster general to strictly enforce the law forbidding all Sabbath breaking in postoffices. Another resolution approved, of the "Lord's Day Week," which is to commence on the first Sunday preceding Easter.

Dr. Mutchler, of Philadelphia said that if railroad employees had one day's rest a week there would be fewer accidents.

Frederick J. Stanley, D. D., general secretary of the American Sabbath union, speaking of "Sunday Rest in Japan," highly commended Admiral Togo for the part he had played in securing the enforcement of Sunday rest regulations.
